DIRECTORS OF HOSPITAL ARE PLEASED WITH STEADY GAINS

Directors of the Annie M. Warner hospital held their first meeting of the new year Friday evening. Between giving careful study to reports of the operation of the hospital, which were "gratifying," and tussling with questions involving finances and urgently needed physical expansion, they proceeded to make the first 1952 meeting the longest in many years.

The usually dull month of December turned out better than normal with an average of 61 patients per day. Cash receipts were within $710.05 of expenditures during the month thus averting the deep in-road into operating funds that usually characterizes the last month of the year. Included in the cash receipts was a $2,500 payment from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Low Operations Cost

A report from the Blue Cross for the first three months of the fiscal year contained further good news. In comparison with 15 hospitals in the area, Warner hospital is operating at almost $2 per patient day below the second lowest and several dollars below the highest. "This efficiency reflects itself in the rates charged by the local hospital, which likewise are generally lower than others in the area," it was announced.

The study of the first six months' operation of the current fiscal year and for the same period last year was even more gratifying. An increase of 244 patient days this year, a slight decline in charity requirements and recoveries made on unpaid accounts brought about a four per cent increase in cash revenue in relation to gross income on an accrual or earned basis. "Income on an accrual or earned basis is what the hospital would receive were it paid for all of its services at established rates," it was announced.

Operating expenses of the hospital increased only 4.6 per cent in the current six months over the same period last year. The directors readily accepted this as a tribute to the management and staff of the institution reflecting, as it does, efficient and economic operation.

Returns From Letters

The directors were impressed when the report of the hospital's letter campaign for the year ending December 1, 1951, was presented showing that of 15,000 Adams countyans who received letters, 7,311 sent contributions aggregating $16,150.25, an average of $2.20 each and an almost 50 per cent response.

Commenting on this report, one director said:

"There can hardly be better evidence of the good will the people of Adams county have for their hospital and the interest they manifest in it. It reflects also the appreciation and confidence that springs from an informed public and we owe thanks to The Gettysburg Times and radio station WGET for the informative features they carried every day during the week in which the Warner hospital's 30th anniversary was observed last year."

The directors adopted a resolution of thanks to The Gettysburg Times and radio station WGET for this public service.

Stress Need For Expansion

Here And There
News Collected At Random

Through the years there has been much discussion as to the advisability, the financial remuneration and the extent of the service to customers, of keeping retail stores open in the evenings. Gettysburg has tried several plans. Recently it was reported that most of the merchants objected to evening hours other than Saturdays.

On several occasions some of the merchants advocated closing Monday mornings and keeping open Thursday afternoons and evenings. Nothing came of that thought. This week Time magazine presents what seems like the most complete summary of retail store hours. Here it is:

When Shoppers' World, an $8,000,000 44-store suburban shopping center, opened last fall at Framingham, Mass., 20 miles west of Boston, it tried an experiment. Its shops decided to stay open until 9 p.m. each Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The experiment worked so well that the stores stayed open five nights a week during the Christmas rush, and last week all but three of the shops decided to go right on staying open three nights a week. Reason: they did more business at night than in the daytime.

Their decision was the latest evidence of a great change in U.S. merchandising, the shift in retailing. The change is based on two facts: 1) people have more time to shop after working hours, and 2) the five-day week has changed Saturday, the traditional peak shopping day, into a "stay-at-home" day. Speeding the trend is the fact that the defense program, drawing more and more wives into the labor force, makes it harder for women to shop during the day.

The National Retail Dry Goods association reports that, in one year, the proportion of leading department and specialty stores open at least one night a week has jumped from 69 percent to 78 percent.

Said one Manhattan merchant last week: "The only remarkable thing is that it took stores so long to realize that it was silly to try to do most of their selling during the very hours when most people couldn't buy because they were working."

Night-selling has brought remarkable changes in U.S. shopping habits. Women used to do most of the buying, frequently returning goods if their husbands disapproved; now whole families shop together. Not only are fewer goods returned, but with husbands along, retailers find more on-the-spot decisions on such "big ticket" items as TV sets, refrigerators and other heavy appliances. They move far faster at night than during the day, with the result that dollar volume at night frequently tops daytime shopping as much as 25 percent. Monday is the peak night-shopping day in many cities (34 percent). Thursday, a big-city favorite (21 percent), is a close runner-up.

Food stores, particularly super markets, were among the first to cash in on night-shopping. Chicago's Super Market Institute, Inc., whose members own 6,048 stores, reports that 27 percent of them are now open every evening. None of them tops California's Hollywood Ranch market, which has thrown the key away, employs three shifts to stay open 24 hours every day, including Sunday, finds its store almost as crowded at 3 a.m. as at 3 p.m.

At first most department stores bucked the trend, none more so than Manhattan's Fifth Avenue stores. They looked down their noses in 1937 when Franklin Simon first experimented with staying open until 9 p.m. Thursday nights. What changed their attitude was the loss of business to outlying shops which stayed open evenings. Today, out of 21 top Fifth Avenue stores, only eight still keep their doors locked every night of the week.

One reason why many merchants dislike night hours is that they boost overhead (overtime pay, supper money, extra shifts, bigger light bills). Richard H. Rich, president of Atlanta's Rich's, terms the move to expand night shopping "a lamentable trend." But Sears, Roebuck, with three thriving Atlanta stores, stays open two nights a week. Says Sears' Southern Vice President Charles H. Kellstadt: "If you've invested millions in a plant, the more hours you use it the more you

LIBRARY SEEKS MORE FUNDS FOR BOOKS IN 1952

Faced with the necessity of finding additional sources of income to maintain and enlarge its services, the Adams County Free Library has appealed to all of the borough councils in the county to include "a substantial sum" for the county library in their 1952 budgets.

The library has appealed to the Adams county commissioners for an increase in the county allotment and is asking borough councils in Gettysburg and New Oxford, the only boroughs now contributing to the library, for increased support.

The letters from the library board have gone out over the signature of the librarian, Mrs. Mary S. Wilson.

Need Money For Books

Pointing out that the price of books and general operation of the library and its bookmobile have increased in the seven years the library has been serving the county, the letters state that these rising costs "have eaten up the yearly balance to a point where we can no longer operate without additional support."

"In our 1952 budget, we have been able to allocate only $500 for the purchase of new books, whereas $3,500 was used for that purpose in 1951," Mrs. Wilson wrote.

"We are confident that you are aware of the wide services of the county library, especially to the children; that you know we are dependent upon the financial support of as many organizations and agencies as we can possibly enlist for our work, and that, in order to meet the many demands of our facilities, our 1952 budget must be increased."

Circulation Over 95,000

Since the early days of the county library, the county has been appropriating $3,500 annually to the library and Gettysburg borough has been giving $600 each year. The appeal to the other borough councils is made "in order to more equally distribute the rising costs of the library," the board's letter explains.

In the letter to the Gettysburg borough council it is pointed out that book circulation in Gettysburg from the county library last year totaled nearly 16,000, an increase of more than 500 over 1950 while the number of registered borrowers has increased approximately 300 each year.

Reports at the board's January meeting showed book loans by the library last year totaled more than 95,000.

Stone Jug Bridge Over Opossum Creek

Old advertisements of business places gone many years ago adorn the interior walls of this old covered bridge, known as Stone Jug bridge No. 2, in Butler township, seven miles north of Gettysburg. This is one of three bridges located in close proximity to each other, Deardorff's burnt mill bridge farther to the west, and Stone Jug bridge No. 1, east of this one, nearer the Harrisburg road.

Signs painted on the boarding in this and nearby bridges notified the farmers, as they drove through the old bridge, that "shellbarks are worth 50 cents in trade at the People's Drug store," and that "Solt, the Gettysburg Tailor, Can Fit You."

In faded lettering are also advertisements of E. Sheely, Arendtsville; Stine, the Clothier, Gettysburg; W. B. Thomas and Son, Center Mills, and Penrose Myers, Jeweler, Gettysburg.

Stone Jug bridge No. 2 is County Bridge No. 75 on the road map published by The Gettysburg Times. Its 54-foot, six-inch single span carries an earth road over Opossum creek. The People's Drug Store had reason to advertise that it would accept shellbarks in trade. There were, and still are, many trees bearing these nuts in the vicinity of the bridge.

This picture was taken looking east toward the Harrisburg road. Beyond the gate in the fence and the wide-branched tree beyond it is a springboard for the youthful swimmers of the vicinity. The creek, relatively shallow at most points above and below the bridge, is wider and deeper here.

The bridge may be reached from Gettysburg by driving out the Harrisburg road to the Thomas store, and turning left over the hill. It is the second bridge reached from either direction. Going north on the Biglerville road, take the right fork on the Old Carlisle road to Table Rock, then Legislative Route 01006. Then turn right at Bender's church.

Admiral Libby Tells General Cho He's "Too Big For Your Britches" In Red-Hot Truce Session Today

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 26 (AP)—Counterattacking Chinese Reds early today drove Allied troops off a west Korea hill captured the night before.

Two Chinese companies—about 300 men—surged back up the hill with heavy support of artillery, mortars and machineguns.

The hill is west of Yonchon, a town seven miles north of parallel 38 and about 35 miles north of Seoul.

Friday night, an Allied attacking force had charged up the height at 7 p.m. By 8:20 p.m., the attackers had overcome the moderate resistance.

But at 9 p.m. the Chinese Reds opened fire with artillery, mortars and small arms. Then at 11:30, the Red infantry struck.

Can't Find Reds

For 30 minutes, the Allied defenders battled the Reds before pulling off and heading back to base shortly after midnight. In the air, U. S. Sabre jets sped deep into North Korea Saturday but found no Red MIGs during the morning hours willing to resume sky fights which cost the Communists 10 jet planes Friday.

The U. S. Fifth air force announced Saturday that Red pilots failed to down a single American plane in air-to-air combat during the period of January 19-25. During that period, 15 MIGs were downed, two more probably destroyed and five damaged.

The Fifth did disclose the loss of three F-84 Thunderjets and an F-80 Shooting Star jet to Red anti-aircraft fire.

57 On Allied List

Lee said the 48 were all the foreign civilians held by the Reds.

Last December 30 the U.N. asked the Communists to account for 55 foreign civilians and added two names a few days later. All were believed to have been captured in the summer of 1950.

About 25 names on Saturday's list were those about whom the U.N. asked. The others were new.

In an adjoining tent, Communist negotiators did not reply to an Allied suggestion that action on the controversial airfield issue be delayed.

Chinese Maj. Gen. Hsieh Fang said the U.N. proposal still was under consideration, but he did not say when a reply would be ready.

The question of whether the Reds may build and repair military airfields in North Korea during an armistice has deadlocked the truce supervision talks for weeks.

To Meet Tonight

Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner Friday had suggested that staff officers be called in to start working out the details on points already agreed upon in principle. In the meantime, the subcommittee could continue debate on airfields or could turn this thorny issue over to staff officers later.

Both subcommittees scheduled meetings for 11 a.m. Sunday (9 p.m. EST Saturday) in Panmunjom.

Libby asked Lee for assurance that the Communists would furnish data on the $0,000 in exchange for data from the Allies asked by the Reds.

Lee replied that he was not satisfied with Libby's "answer."

Libby then told the five-foot Lee, smallest member of the Red delegation:

"I asked you, General Lee, a question. You give me no answer. You have the brazen effrontery to say 'I am not satisfied with that answer.' It seems to us that you are getting a little too big for your britches."

Funeral Services For Accident Victim

Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

170 GIVE BLOOD HERE ON FRIDAY THRU RED CROSS

One hundred and seventy Adams countyans donated a pint of blood apiece for the armed forces Friday.

A total of 195 persons appeared to give blood at the Red Cross-sponsored blood donor center in the Christ Lutheran church basement and 25 of that number were rejected. Rejections ran from such causes as a previous history of malaria, to high blood pressure and anemia.

A number of the 210 who had been scheduled to report called in to report their inability to be present due to illness or other causes. One who was unable to be present sent a substitute in his place.

Next Date Is February 28

With the most successful Blood Donor day in the current series behind it, the Red Cross began immediate preparations for the scheduled February 28 Donation day.

Response of the public to the success to a large extent because the donors list up to the present has been nearly exhausted with Friday's donations.

However, the Red Cross had high hopes for an "organizational quota" donor system inaugurated for the next Donor day. Clubs, plants and other organizations have been sent letters asking them to send from one to three members to give blood. Response so far has been "very

WGCT PRESENTS GOOD FEATURES OVER WEEK-END

Three exceptional programs are scheduled for this week-end over WGCT, the first of which will be aired tonight.

"Serenade in Blue," an all-airman show, will be presented this evening from 7:15 until 7:30 o'clock by the United States Air Force. It will feature the U. S. Symphony orchestra, the Singing Sergeants and Sergeant Jones, soloist. Musical selections will include: "Liza," "Donkey Serenade," "Didn't My Lord Deliver Daniel," "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and "Hour of Parting."

"Action at Bou Adel" will be the dramatic production Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock starring Conrad Nagel. In this presentation a young lieutenant of the French Foreign Legion finds it difficult to respect and obey the command of his superior officer, believing him to be his father's murderer. It is a thrilling presentation.

Prize Winning Play
The Ave Maria hour Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock will feature the prize-winning play in the National Script Writing Contest for Catholic students, "All the Rest Have 31," by Miss Peggy Butler, senior journalism major at Mundelein college, Chicago.

The contest was conducted by the National Radio Commission, St. Joseph college, Emmitsburg. The purpose of the contest was to encourage young writers who might not otherwise be heard in the highly competitive broadcasting field. The students were given complete freedom in choice of topic so that they might exert their best efforts for the contest. Miss Butler's script is a fantasy, the story of how February lost three days from the calendar. The judges thought "All the Rest Have 31" a delightfully fresh idea, well executed.

Guests on the "Woman's Voice," 10:30-11:00 a.m. daily over WGCT next week will be: Monday, Adams county chapter of the American Red Cross; Tuesday, Gettysburg area PTA; Wednesday, Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Gettysburg Methodist church.

Bonneauville Man Injured In Hanover

Peter Gephart, 62, Bonneauville, employed as a carpenter by the J. R. Fleming Construction company, Hanover, received a laceration in the back of the scalp and a fracture of the chest when he was pinned under a steam-pipe coil Friday afternoon at the Hanover Dry Kiln company.

The injured man was moved to the Hanover hospital in the Hanover ambulance. His condition was reported as good Friday night.

Fellow employees said Gephart had been stooped over under the pipe, which was being moved, when the coil shifted pinning him to the floor. They estimated the coil weighed about 1,000 pounds.

can reduce costs." More than any other merchandiser, Sears, by its aggressive selling, has been forcing the pace all over the U.S. In Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and Milwaukee, it now stays open three nights a week. In addition, Sears, and many other stores, have a 24-hour telephone order service.

Against the argument, often raised, that employees don't like to work at night, Dallas' Sanger Bros. finds that 15 percent of its sales force asked for it; the bigger trade brings in more in commissions. Furthermore, all merchants like the trend toward family buying. Families are buying items that individual shoppers might decide they could get along without.

Another thought advanced is this: Why do drug stores, taverns, hotels, theaters, restaurants and other business places keep open in the evenings? The answer: More business in the evening.

Littlestown Hi Girl Has Polio

The first polio case in Adams county in more than a year was diagnosed Friday evening at the Warner hospital and the victim, Winifred Redding, 13-year-old Littlestown high school girl, was taken to the contagious diseases ward of the Harrisburg City hospital about 7 p.m.

The girl, who is one of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Redding, Littlestown R. 2, Union township, was taken ill Friday. She is not suffering any paralysis. She was taken to the Warner hospital in the Littlestown ambulance about 5 p.m. Friday where a spinal tap was made. Her physician is Dr. L. L. Potter, Littlestown.

William I. Shields, state sanitary officer for Adams county, placed the Redding home under 14-day quarantine Friday evening and suggested to Littlestown school authorities that school buildings and buses be given a thorough cleaning over the week-end.

DIRECTORS OF

Walter R. Doud, supported by Dr. Roy W. Gifford, president of the medical staff, related the extent to which the X-ray department and the dispensary have outgrown their quarters and pointed to the urgency of expansion.

Mr. Doud reflected the great amount of study he had given the problem and its solution by sketching on a blackboard several structural changes that might be made that would provide temporary relief and modest improvement in the crowded facilities.

Discussion revealed these measures would suffice but a year or two at the most, and it was developed that the surgical suites will soon need enlarging in order to maintain present high standards. The factor of obsolescence in the case of the old building had to be reckoned with in considering any major remodeling of the original structure, as well as the loss of surgical, X-ray and dispensary facilities during the time the changes were being made.

Ask Further Study

It became apparent that even temporary relief of crowded conditions in the service department would be neither a small nor an inexpensive project.

The directors instructed Mr. Doud to make inquiry as to the costs of having an expert hospital consultant make a study of the property and recommend steps to be taken to carry through an expansion program as and in the order needed, that would enable the hospital by successive steps to meet the requirements of the next 20 years as they become manifest.

The hospital administrator asked for directors in the matter of a few accounts that have ignored all appeals for payment of their indebtedness to the hospital.

"No charity case ever is turned down nor are our services to them in any way curtailed because they are charity cases," Mr. Doud explained, "but we have just a few cases, clearly not charity cases, who at the time of departure asked for time to pay their bill because of their physical condition or because of temporary financial circumstances, who completely reverse the appreciation they so enthusiastically expressed while patients by ignoring their obligation afterwards with apparently equal enthusiasm."

Mourn Recent Deaths

"No hospital enjoys freedom from this problem and most hospitals enter suit in such cases to enforce payment. We haven't many cases like this, but it would appear that the board should determine the procedure to be followed," Doud said.

Without minimizing the importance of the problem because of the few instances that arise, the board directed Mr. Doud to report such cases to the directors in the respective areas, who in turn will make personal efforts to effect collection. President Baum noted the passing of two directors from Gettysburg since the last meeting and appropriate resolutions were adopted mourning the deaths of Father Mark E. Stock and H. Harold Miller.

Father Stock was one of incorporators of the hospital and served as a director since its organization. He was treasurer for many years. Mr. Miller served as a director for more than 20 years and was chairman of the house and supply committee at one time.

A committee was appointed to submit nominations from Gettysburg to fill the unexpired terms of the two deceased directors.

President Baum presided over the meeting which was attended by the following:

Vice President John Hauser, Biglerville; Vice President Richard Livingston, New Oxford; Treasurer Philip M. Jones, Gettysburg; and Directors C. P. Keefer, New Oxford; Wilbur Bankert and William Sneeringer, Littlestown; John Brown, Fairfield; Edgar McDannell, Arendtsville; William Durbin, Dr. Frank H. Kramer and Henry M. Scharf, of Gettysburg.

At the same time they renewed their plea for individuals to sign for donations. Such volunteers can be accepted at the Red Cross office up to February 15.

A second source for donations next time will be those who gave at the first blood donor day and will be eligible to give again on February 28.

For seven of the donors Friday it was the second time they have given blood under the new program. And for 16 it was a donation without an appointment.

One of the group who gave for the second time was Kenneth "Hack" Tawney, Baltimore street, World War II veteran and former borough policeman. Tawney was the first man to arrive on the scene Friday morning and the first person to give blood. Other second donors included Paul Lantz, Frank Skidmore, George Olinger, Mahlon P. Hartzell, Jr., H. The Red Cross expressed its appreciation for the "walk-ins," whose decision to "drop in and see if they could be of use," helped fill the vacancies and helped put the Donor day "over the top," but at the same time warned that those who "just drop in" take a chance there may not be an opening for them.

Wildcats Nip Warriors 48-44 As Chambersburg Takes Title

Gettysburg high school ended the first half race of the South Penn Basketball league with a sour performance at Mechanicsburg, losing a 48-44 decision despite a 23-point effort on the part of "Skip" Pisel.

Ross Sacs' jayvees clinched the first half title in their division by soundly defeating the Mechanicsburg reserves 47-32. Meanwhile the Chambersburg scrubs eliminated Hanover by gaining a 54-30 decision.

The Chambersburg Trojans, eight-time loop champions, gained the first half honors by defeating Hanover on the Nighthawk court 60-50.

Pisel's five goals in the first quarter enabled the Warrior varsity to take a 14-8 advantage. Mechanicsburg spurred ahead at half time 24-23 on a trio of goals by Helman, singles by Woolford and Browning and four foul conversions. The Warriors' points came on a pair of goals by Bob Hixon, a goal and foul by Jim Skinner, and free tosses by Dick Harriel and Jack Bream.

Hold To Lead
All of points for Gettysburg in the third period resulted on five more shots by Pisel. Meanwhile the Wildcats boosted their margin to 37-33 mainly through the efforts of Woolford and Helman.

Each team secured 11 points in the final round with Mechanicsburg holding grimly to its margin.

Both teams connected from the floor for 19 goals but Mechanicsburg netted 10 of 18 fouls while the best the Warriors could do was six of 16.

The Warrior scrubs made short work of the Mechanicsburg junior varsity, piling up a 21-5 lead in the first half. A tight defense permitted the Wildcats but two goals during the half. Schmitt and Rohrbach led the well-rounded Gettysburg attack with Marsicano landing 15 points for the losers.

Next Tuesday the Warriors meet Delone Catholic here.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—The IBC (NY branch) is trying to cook up a garden fight between Chico Vejar and Roger Donoghue.

It goes through, it will be merely a good local and television attraction—except for one gimmick. . . . It probably will be the first time a couple of college freshmen ever have fought a main event in the garden or any other major fight arena.

There have been a number of good college-bred boxers—Billy Soose and Steve Hamas from Penn State, for instance, and Bob Pastor and Al Lassman of NYU. Fidel Labarba "retired" once when he was fly-weight champ to enter college but didn't pursue education very far; huge Jack Torrance took up fighting with notable lack of success after completing his football and weight tossing chores in college and, just lately, Michigan State's Chuck Davey, three-time intercollegiate champion, has been making a name for himself as a pro boxer.

But they were all older than Chico and Roger when they turned from learning to scrapping. . . . Vejar, just out of Stanford, Conn., high school, is a freshman at NYU, studying dramatic arts. Donoghue, a Yonkers, N. Y., youngster, plans to enter Fordham in February to study "communicative arts"—a fancy name for the radio-television trade.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Charles Hofner, who teaches golf at Cleveland's Shaker Heights club in summer and works in the Hialeah mutuels in winter, is an odds-on choice to win the Flamingo Golf tournament for racetrackers starting tomorrow. . . . "Spring" football practice at the U. of West Virginia will begin Feb. 4 (Brr-r-r-rr) to comply with the NCAA 30-day rule and give the boys a shot at spring sports when spring really arrives.

. . . Eddie Sawyer, the Phillies manager, and Tom Nugent, VMI football coach and originator of the "I" formation, were roommates at Ithaca college. Maybe Nugent can cook up a formation that will win for the Phils.

With this edition, the "Sports Roundup" comes to the end of its present sponsorship. . . . Before turning to a different field of sports writing, this author desires to extend heartfelt thanks to the newspaper men, publicity guys, athletes, coaches, managers, etc., who have so generously contributed items and ideas during the past ten years. . . . We can't write all of you right away—but don't go away, pals. We'll still be needing your held and friendship.

REFEREE RULES BOUT NO MATCH; HEARING CALLED

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—Never a dull night at Madison Square Garden—after the fights are over. If a manager doesn't slug a referee, a referee slugs a fighter with the rule book.

Last night Referee Ruby Goldstein found Livio Minelli of Italy "no match" for Brooklyn's unbeaten Johnny Saxton and stopped their bout after 1:27 of the seventh round. Minelli's purse was held up and a hearing was called next Friday.

Well, what was it? Knockout? Technical knockout? Or What?

Chairman Bob Christenberry of the New York State Athletic commission said late last night he would rule it a technical knockout. Yet you'll search the New York rule book for weeks to find any mention of such a thing as a TKO.

Referee Goldstein said he stopped it under section three of the rules, empowering referees "to stop a bout or contest at any stage and make a decision if he considers it too one-sided."

The 5,152 fans who paid $16,339 knew only that Johnny Addie, the official announcer, told them:

"The referee is of the opinion that Livio Minelli was 'no match' for Johnny Saxton and awards the decision to Saxton."

Saxton was winning all the way, 6-0, on Goldstein's card and 5-1 with Judges Frank Forbes and Charley Shortell. Back pedaling all the way while Saxton tried his damndest to land effectively, Minelli clutched and ran. It was Saxton's 25th straight but a most disappointing ending to a dreary bout. Saxton weighed 148, Minelli 151.

The customers who hooted and whistled through the late rounds agreed with Goldstein's move.

"We admire his (Goldstein's) guts," said Commissioner Christenberry. "Minelli was running away and was no match."

It was the first time in years a main go in the Garden had been stopped for such a reason, although Referee Ray Miller almost choked Willie Pep out of the ring last summer for wrestling tactics in his outdoor title bout with featherweight champ Sandy Saddler.

Only two weeks ago there was a post-fight ruckus when Manager Tommy (Ryan) Eboli attacked Referee Miller in a neutral corner after Miller stopped a fight between Castellani, Tommy's fighter, and Ernie Durando. As a result, Eboli's license was revoked for life and he was fined $3,000.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE SOIL OF THE SOUL

It's the soil, the chemical substance of the good earth, that contributes to the very life of all that there is of life, whether it be insect, bird, animal, flower, tree or man. To earth, our mother, do we all bow in gratitude. To her do we owe what snatches of happiness we enjoy. But to the Creator we owe this earth and this soil of ours.

To make this soil productive continually, however, it must itself be nourished, studied and understood so as to reap from its abundance all its richness. Only the rich, nourished soil gives a full return.

It's that way with us human beings. Something within us must be constantly enriched. For want of a better expression, let us call this inner something the Soil of the Soul. To this, to make it rich and productive, we need to exert all our mental, physical and spiritual resources. Then it is that we are sure to reap a harvest of happiness, for it can only be grown and brought to its best state when the Soil of the Soul has put it in readiness.

Those who miss happiness, and complain about it, are always those who have ill prepared themselves to receive it. Honors come to those who deserve them. Like love, if you prepare a place for them to live and function, they will find that place and make their nest there. And in that nest will hatch beauty, and all the living lights that spread richness there.

We were placed in this world to distribute our abundance so as to make others happy. The Soil for its production belongs to us. Our responsibility is to create an abundant harvest! Our own happiness then will rival the thought of David, in his 23rd Psalm, where he said: "My cup runneth over." Don't hunt for happiness in yourself. Hunt it in others, where you have planted the seeds of it from your own Soil to the Soul. Then, again, as David wrote in his Psalm, you can say: "Goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life!"

WINTER GOLF COURSE

Now under snow the golf course lies,
From men who play there
spring to fall
The traps, committee minds devise,
Are deeply hidden, one and all.

No footprints in the bunkers show,
All level is from tee to green.
The rough for weeks has ceased to grow.

No fearful hazards can be seen,
The birds have flown, the trees are bare.
No one is on the practice ground.

The pros have left for regions where
More lesson takers can be found.

To Mike, the greensman, in his shed,
No member with complaints appears.

He paints the flagstaffs white and red
And mends the mowers' blades and gears.

McMahon made the request in a telegram to Illinois Secretary of State Edward J. Barrett. Senator Kefauver of Tennessee also has been entered in the primary.

Many a driver whose car won't stop on a dime sure can get into some tight quarters.

Short Cut To Skid

One of the sad facts about driving is that so many people who get themselves into skids do so because they are constantly thinking about such trouble. Their fear traps them into doing some of the things that bring on skids. I refer to nervous, unsteady driving. Or failure to dab the brake pedal because of fear that the car won't stop unless braked firmly. Or driving so slowly that it is necessary to drop down into the lower gears where the engine may send too much power through to the driving wheels.

It would be interesting to see how well some drivers could get along if they didn't know they were running over slippery roads. Normally we'd expect to see them trapped into all sorts of accidents, but it might not always work that way. A lot of this fear of skidding is due to the imagination. One driver, finding himself skeptical of the anti-skid features of the particular tire treads on his car, thought his car was showing a tendency to skid on curves during a rain storm.

This Explains It

How did that get there? You hear this a lot wherever automobiles are used and abused. The owner finds the rear axle overfilling with lube and does not realize that it is leaking from the transmission and running down the troque tube. Then there is the fellow who finds water dripping from the vent at the bottom of the clutch housing and who has to be told that this indicates leakage around a core plug which on some cars is at the rear of the motor block inside the clutch housing.

Oil mist that gets into the distributor of course comes up to the worn shaft from the crankcase. Gas vapor that gets into the distributor, and which blows off the cap now and again, reaches this spot through a leak in the diaphragm of the vacuum spark control.

Really On The Skids

It is quite obvious, or ought to be, that if the streets are so slippery that the car tends to skid the going is going to be very risky if the driver steps out of the car and tries to walk. A friend of mine knows this only too well. Following a minor skid he stepped out of his car to see if he had caused any damage only to fall flat on his back. He was just trying to get up when a pedestrian took my friend by his feet and pulled him out of the path of a skidding truck.

"Among the things that motorists should not worry about are the strange noises the clutch may make when coasting in low or second with the clutch disengaged. This comes about when the driver starts up and finds that because of traffic conditions he wants to loaf along before making a shift to a higher gear. He presses the pedal to the floor but keeps in gear and then worries because there are rattles, swishings or other unfamiliar noises in this hard-working unit. In the case of cars which have the hand brake on the propeller shaft just back of the transmission partial setting of this brake will make matters worse."

One of the advantages of caster in front-end geometry is that it helps you straighten out the car after a turn has been made. If you read between the lines you'll also find that if the car is hard to straighten out after you have rounded a corner there isn't sufficient caster. In fact, there may be negative caster. Another clue is that the car will take the turns easily and that there will be a marked tendency to wander all over the road, especially if there are rear seat passengers.

While in a shop for some service the other day I was surprised to note that I was standing beside one of the most widely heralded cars of 1951 without realizing that it was the envy of many millions of motorists. The reason was not at once apparent. But the light broke through as I started to rub my fingers over the chrome trim to see if it was some imitation plating or the real thing. It was then that I discovered why the car didn't have any special eye appeal. All the trim was greased for protection, and the finish of the body was still grimy from the car's trip over the road in a driveway truck.

It brought me to a full realization of how much the mere shine on a car means to its overall appearance.

Best For Automatics

Listening in on a recent technical discussion I learned that while premium grade light engine oil is all right for use in some of the automatic transmissions, when nothing else is available, the Type A lube designed for these systems is preferable. Engineers point out that since oil for automatic transmissions serve to transfer energy there is heating which ordinary lubricants are not designed to handle.

Right on top of McCahill's new book on "Sports Cars" comes another Fawcett creation titled the "Hot Rod Handbook." This time will tell you how to "soup up" practically anything that runs, and don't jump to the conclusion that this involves mere face lifting. It is truly remarkable what the hot rods boys are getting from stock cars in the way of performance. They spend small fortunes doing it, and endless time. You may not have any more interest in hot rodding than I have but no one can read this book without getting a much better understanding of what makes his conventional car tick and how to give it the benefit of better tuning. Pictured and described also are many pieces of special equipment which serve to make good cars a lot better. If you question this just read the chapter on torque. In the hot rod profession peak torque is reached somewhere around 3,000 engine rpm instead of around 1,500 in the average stock car.

The Motor Primer

Motorists who over a period of time have been able to discover what carburetor jets do are naturally puzzled when trying to grasp the meaning of metering rods in some of the modern units. It may help in understanding such rods to picture them as economizers. Some carburetors use air bleeds for economizing purposes, the mixture getting the benefit of more air when the throttle is further opened. The other way to accomplish the same purpose (a leaner mixture) is to use a rod with graduated steps to control the amount of gasoline flowing to the high speed jet.

What's Your Trouble?

Q. We have made a very careful search of the cause of high oil consumption in the motor of my car, but have failed to come up with the answer. There is a minor knock in the motor, too, and so far we have been unable to put our finger on it. Have reduced oil pressure at the relief valve on the theory that there was a knocking in the oil lines due to the high pressure. H. D. C.

A. I think it would be a good idea to check for a bent connecting rod which would cause the noise as well as excessive oil pumping.

Q. At high altitudes does an engine require a leaner or a richer mixture? Wm. L.

A. As we go to higher elevations there is less oxygen in the air. The carburetor, therefore, should be adjusted to provide more air. Usually when traveling into the mountains, if you are not going to stay there, the modern carburetor can do a fair job of making compensations, provided the cooling system is efficient enough to prevent overheating.

Q. What would cause an annoying rattling noise in the engine when I am running slowly and sometimes when accelerating? J. J. E.

A. Sounds like a loose heat control valve in the exhaust manifold. It will tighten up in time.

Q. My car has one of the old style hydrostatic gasoline gauges and it constantly reads too high. Some time I'll probably be caught with an empty tank. There is plenty of liquid in the tube. R. W. S.

A. That's just the trouble — too much liquid. Using the wrong kind of liquid will also do it.

Q. I have been having trouble shifting gears. It is just plain hard work shifting in all gears. Previously the job was extremely easy. M. N. N.

A. Your car has a vacuum booster for the shifting. You will find that there is a leak in the vacuum line or in one of the connections.

Q. For some time I have been bothered by a peculiar condition of the brakes. Around town everything is quite normal but on the open road the brakes do not hold well and the pedal starts to fall. I have had the lines bled several times and the brake shoe clearances checked. The brake lining seems to be all right, too. V. B. McH.

A. I have recently received several such complaints. The answer lies in the brake drums which are too thin. They expand when the brakes are used hard as on the open road. In one of these cases the car was a used job, the previous owner having had the drums cut down to compensate for warpage. The cutting was evidently overdue.

Q. Oil is dripping from the fly-wheel housing. Do you think oil is leaking past the rear main bearing? T. G., Jr.

A. First check to see if oil is leaking from the rear of the valve compartment and running down outside the housing.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, West Hartford, 7, Connecticut, and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. There is no charge.

Harrisburg, Jan. 26 (AP)—The problem of eradicating Bang's disease in cattle will be tackled at a series of meetings throughout the state in the next two months. J. Lewis Williams, Uniontown, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Brucellosis committee, said the first district meeting will take place at Reading January 29.

Orders will follow at Williamsport, January 30; Wilkes-Barre, January 31; Greensburg, February 5; Oil City, February 6, and Carlisle, February 7.

County's Share

amount of taxes collected by all local government units in Pennsylvania in 1949.

Would be enough to pay operating expenses of all public schools in Pennsylvania for 20 years, at the current rate of school expenditures.

The state chamber's estimate of Pennsylvania's share of the federal spending burden was based on a formula indicating that Pennsylvania bears 7.52 percent of total federal taxes. The formula takes into account individual and corporate income taxes and also excise and miscellaneous taxes.

67 counties on the basis of each county's population, retail sales, real estate values, and taxable payrolls (under the federal O.A.S.I. program).

"Although the President's budget message calls for expenditure of $85.4 billion next year, it anticipates that only $70.9 billions in revenue will be available at present tax rates," said Executive Director Leonard P. Fox, of the state chamber. "This would mean a budget deficit of almost $15 billions, which in turn would add new fuel to inflation."

"It is within the power of Congress and the President to reduce or wipe out this threatened deficit by cutting expenditures. Appropriations for wasteful, bureaucratic spending and also for proposed new domestic spending programs must be eliminated so that the government, like the people, can live within its income."
